

UMass Lowell Survey of Texas Likely Voters

October 20-26, 2020

N=873 Texas Likely Voters

The sample has an adjusted margin of error +/-4.2%

See <http://uml.edu/polls> for full questionnaire/topline results and detailed methodology disclosure.

Survey design and analysis by J. Dyk, Director and Jon Clark, Associate Director
Center for Public Opinion, University of Massachusetts Lowell

Do you have a question about this? If so, email steve@UML\_CPO and we'll get back to you.

---

HIGHLIGHTS

Trump and Biden are close races Texas achieves swing state status

President Donald Trump is seen in front of Vice President Joe Biden in a close race for Texas. 38% of Texas likely voters released by the UMass Lowell Center for Public Opinion.

among the white end to a election day Trump leads Biden 64% to 30%. With an unprecedented number of early states already cast, it will be critical for the President to win this many who have decided to vote on election day.

Biden is winning 94% of Democrats, while Trump is winning 90% of Republicans. However, among independent voters, 39% are for Biden compared to 48% for Trump. Biden leads among those with a Bachelor's degree (50% Biden to 45% for Trump), while Trump leads among those with a college degree (50% Trump to 45% Biden). Biden leads among those with a college degree, Trump has his biggest lead, 70% Biden to 25% Trump. Biden leads among white voters 61% to 33%, while Biden leads among Black voters 84% to 13% and Hispanic voters 58% to 39%.

While Trump leads Biden, his support is even among Trump and Biden voters.

dominating a placement for the Rth BaderGi nsg, and data major Texas likely to be their Senating in fact Amy Coey Bae's nomination to the
Some City a margin 659% to 41%.

The Pandemic